MARKET WAVEGEN

Delivering Excellence

who is most likely interested in you right now.

how we can add value

The core of our service is built around the concept of intent signals which is a new way of understanding and predicting behavior in B2B marketing. So what exactly is intent? When a person has identified a problem they need solved, they search for an answer using their preferred keyword phrases (known as top of the funnel searches).

If that search doesn't produce a satisfactory result, they may dig deeper into their problem and continue searching with more refined keyword phrases (known as mid-funnel searches). If that search still doesn't produce an answer, they will reach out to someone who can help them solve their problem, which is known as bottom-of-the-funnel searches.

We use machine learning algorithms to capture these intent signals in real time and organize them into three buckets.